

EDITORIAL NOTES

Folklore Forum regrets the omission in Vol. 18 (2) of an acknowledgement for William Guinee's article "Confrontation and the Creation of Balance: Ritual Clowning Among the Zuni." The author wishes to acknowledge that his paper was originally written in the Fall Semester of 1983 for a course in American Indian Folklore conducted by Dr. John McDowell at the Folklore Institute, Indiana University.

It has come to our attention that a new European folklore journal has been established: Ethnologia Flandrica. Articles address a wide range of subjects and issues. While most articles are in Flemish, substantial summaries are provided in English, German, and French. The journal costs 400F (including postage). Address orders to: Leuvense Vereniging voor Volkskunde, Blijde-Inkomstraat 21, B-3000 Leuven, Belgium.

We would like to call our readers' attention to a new telephone information service called Folkline, established by the American Folklore Society. By simply dialing (202) 287-2000, one can receive a recorded message which conveys information about training and employment opportunities, as well as news notices of national interest to folklorists. Messages are updated every Monday. We urge students to take advantage of this useful new service. For those who would like to submit notices, write to Folkline, American Folklife Center, Library of Congress, Washington, D.C. 20540.

The editors of Folklore Forum welcome Chad Berry of the Folk Studies Program at Western Kentucky University as a new Corresponding Editor on the staff. Folklore students at other institutions are also invited to join the crew. Corresponding Editors should: (1) solicit articles from students or faculty at their institution, (2) sell subscriptions, and (3) write a "Practical Guide to the Study of Folklore" at their institution (see the introductory note to this series of informative articles in Folklore Forum 17:1). For more information, write to The Editors, Folklore Forum, 504 North Fess, Bloomington, IN 47405.

CONTRIBUTORS

Regina Bendix is a Ph.D. candidate in the Folklore Institute at Indiana University. She recently returned from Switzerland and is currently working on her dissertation.

Tina Bucavalas is currently affiliated with the Historical Museum of Southern Florida.

Linda S. Chang is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Romance Languages and Literatures at Ohio State University.

Gregory Hansen is a graduate student at Western Kentucky University. He is presently completing his Master's thesis while working as a folklorist/consultant for Bear Creek Camp, Bear Creek, PA.

Jan Laude is a Ph.D. candidate at The Folklore Institute, Indiana University.

W.K. McNeil holds a Ph.D. in Folklore from Indiana University and is the folklorist at the Ozark Folk Center in Mt. View, Arkansas.

Eric Montenyohl is currently affiliated with the University of Southwestern Louisiana.

Enoch Timpunza Mvula is a Ph.D. candidate at the Folklore Institute, Indiana University.